ECONOMIC COMMENTARY

The low interest rate environment has helped fuel equity markets to record highs. Despite the high level of uncertainty and geopolitical risks in the market, volatility remains muted. The Bank of Canada raised interest rates twice in the period catching investors off-guard. The Canadian dollar rallied, however it did pull back late in the quarter as the Bank of Canada indicated that any future interest rate moves would be data dependent. The Canadian economy expanded at a 4.5% annual rate in the second quarter following a 3.7% pace in the first quarter, making it the fastest growing economy in the G7. The Canadian consumer led the way, fueled by low interest rates and a strong job market. Economic growth is expected to subside over the balance of the year due to the impact of higher interest rates as well as a slowdown in the Toronto housing market. After raising interest rates twice during the first half of the year, the U.S. Federal Reserve remained on hold during the third quarter. Lower-than-expected inflation continues to be the main catalyst that could prevent the Fed from raising rates over the near-term. The Federal Reserve announced that it would be shrinking its balance sheet, which was used to keep rates low for a prolonged period by purchasing various securities. With the U.S. economy on a firmer footing and a robust employment picture, quantitative easing measures are no longer warranted.

ASSET MIX STRATEGY

Asset mix continues to be targeted at long-term policy benchmarks.

FIXED INCOME STRATEGY

Two interest rate hikes by the Bank of Canada in combination with a very strong Canadian economy pressured rates higher during the third quarter. The duration of the portfolio was held shorter than benchmark and benefitted from the rising interest rate environment. Portfolio duration was extended at the end of the third quarter to take advantage of the higher yields available in the market, and is now only modestly shorter than benchmark. The spread between corporate bonds and Government of Canada bonds tightened marginally during the quarter. The portfolio continues to maintain an overweight position in corporate bonds, with a bias to higher quality ratings. Provincial bond spreads tightened marginally as well. The provincial bond position is slightly underweight the benchmark weight as provincial bond spreads remain at fairly tight levels compared to Government of Canada bonds.

EQUITY STRATEGY

The Canadian portfolio achieved a moderate positive return during the quarter and was ahead of the broader market.

Materials holdings Potash, Stella-Jones, and Teck Resources had strong returns during the period. Shares in Potash appreciated as prices for urea (fertilizer) rallied significantly off multi-year lows and the near-term supply/demand picture for potash improved. In the prior quarter, Teck's stock had corrected, falling from recent highs. Many viewed this as an over-correction and a potential buying opportunity. Also following many quarters of debt reduction, Teck's debt rating is approaching investment grade again. Lastly, results from the second quarter were better than expected fueled by a higher realized coking coal price.

Bird Construction was a positive contributor to the performance. Bird reported results that were near consensus. More importantly, the company outlined that it expects earnings in the second half of the year would compare favourably with the prior year, and better than the street had been expecting.

The Energy sector advanced as the price of oil rebounded. The portfolio's energy holdings Canadian Natural Resources, Cenovus, and Suncor increased in price. In particular Cenovus had a strong return after weakness earlier in the year. Cenovus shares rebounded strongly, regaining some of its loss after being severely punished for its transformational acquisition of assets in March. As it makes progress on its plan to sell non-core assets to pay down debt, tracking our projected path to balance sheet repair, sentiment towards the stock has improved but it continues to trade below net asset value.

The financial holdings including the banks and insurance companies had positive returns on the back of good quarterly results with CIBC, Intact Financial, Manulife, Sun Life and TD Bank leading the way.

New positions in CCL Industries and Richelieu Hardware were initiated.

A new position was added in CCL Industries during the quarter. CCL is a global leader in the production of pressure sensitive labels, polymer bank notes, labels and binders for home office, and inventory management technology among other business lines. The company is unique in the Canadian marketplace due to its exposure to the global consumer base. Management is very well respected and have demonstrated excellent operating results in growing the company through several strategic acquisitions. An attractive entry point resulted from a temporary rise in commodity costs which weighed on the company's quarterly earnings release.

Richelieu Hardware Ltd. imports, distributes, and manufactures specialty hardware and related products in Canada and the United States. The company serves kitchen and bathroom cabinet, storage and closet, home furnishing, and office furniture manufacturers; residential and commercial woodworkers; and hardware retailers, such as renovation superstores.

Historically they have achieved a high level of sales due in part to organic growth but also through multiple strategic acquisitions in the U.S. The company has a solid balance sheet with minimal debt and is very profitable. Richelieu consistently generates strong free cash flows which it can use to buy back shares and increase its dividend. A continued increase in North American residential spending on housing renovations should benefit the company going forward.

The global portfolio posted a slight negative return and lagged the broader market which posted a small positive return during the period. A lower exposure to Information Technology and Materials affected the performance as those sectors had positive returns. Contributors to the performance came from various holdings.

Bed Bath & Beyond detracted from the performance as it reported disappointing results that included a cut to their forward guidance that was below expectations. Sales trends continue to be negative in-store while their online channel is showing solid growth. The company continues to make investments to grow its omni-channel capabilities, further impacting its operating results. Sentiment in the shares is low and the operating trends are weak, however the company continues to generate positive free cash flow and is buying back their stock. Valuation is very attractive and we believe there is upside once the company's investments come to fruition.

Verizon Communications stock performed well as the company stronger than expected Q2 results, with a rebound in wireless activations. Additionally, the stock benefitted from the rumored consolidation in the industry between Sprint and T-Mobile.

Consumer Staples holdings Aryzta and Nestle detracted from the performance during the period. Aryzta declined as its earnings results came in below expectations. Guidance for next year was reduced on lower volumes. The company recently hired a new CEO and CFO, which we believe should help address its operating issues. The valuation is attractive for a company that generates solid free cash flow. Asset sales are expected to help de-lever the balance sheet, which should provide a positive catalyst.

Energy companies Chevron and Royal Dutch Shell had strong returns on the back of higher oil prices. Both positions were trimmed. Chevron had good quarterly results with the downstream division performing well. The company also achieved higher production volumes. Royal Dutch Shell also had good quarterly results with the downstream division performing well. The company also achieved higher production volumes. Free cash flow was strong again and asset dispositions remain on track, both helping to de-lever the balance sheet.

Financial holdings AXA, ING, and Morgan Stanley added to the performance during the period.

Health Care holdings GlaxoSmithKline and Zimmer Biomet detracted from the performance. GlaxoSmithKline declined during the period, the position was increased opportunistically. Shares in Zimmer Biomet declined as the company pre-announced disappointing Q2 results stemming from ongoing production issues, and the resignation of its CEO. We believe a change in senior management change could be positive for the company providing an opportunity to address the recent operations missteps. The valuation on the stock is attractive and the risk/reward is favorable at the current price.

The position in Teva was sold following the disappointing Q2 results that also featured a dividend cut and lowered guidance. We became increasingly concerned about the strain being placed on the balance sheet. Separately, Allergan announced that it intends to sell its 10% stake in TEVA over the next few months, providing further pressure on the stock.

¹ Commissions, trailing commissions, management fees and expenses may be associated with mutual fund investments. Please read the prospectus before investing. The indicated rates of return are historical annual compounded total returns including changes in unit values and reinvestment of all distributions.
